Pope Benedict XVI's Message for the 2012 World Day of Prayer for the Sick

The Holy Father focuses on the sacraments of healing; the Sacrament of Penance - the "medicine of confession" - and the Anointing of the Sick. Raising up the latter, Pope Benedict says:

"This sacrament deserves greater consideration today both in theological reflection and in pastoral ministry among the sick. Through a proper appreciation of the content of the liturgical prayers that are adapted to the various human situations connected with illness, and not only when a person is at the end of his or her life (cf. Catechism of the Catholic Church, 1514), the Anointing of the Sick should not be held to be almost "a minor sacrament" when compared to the others. Attention to and pastoral care for sick people, while, on the one hand, a sign of God's tenderness towards those who are suffering, on the other brings spiritual advantage to priests and the whole Christian community as well, in the awareness that what is done to the least, is done to Jesus himself (cf. Mt25:40)."

Vocation Seeds

Jesus created much excitement in His day through His preaching, teaching, and healing. Today, the Church communicates that same wonder and grace by those active in priesthood, religious life, and lay ministries.

Are you an Organ Donor?

It may surprise some people that the Catholic Church is strongly in favour of organ and tissue donation. The gift of an organ or tissues to another person is in keeping with the Church's teaching on respect for the life and dignity of the human person, including our belief in the resurrection of the body. Donating part of our physical body after death does not compromise what is eternal any more than cremation or the natural decaying of the body in the ground would.

The psalmist sang of the wonders of ourselves, the wonders of God's works as we were each knitted together in the womb. The early Fathers of the Church knew that God's glory is the human person fully alive. The human body, our glorious, wonderfully knit-together expression of life, is a marvel of interconnectedness and interdependence. It is a model of how all life and human society should live in harmony and in the service of God and each other.

As Christians, we know we are called to imitate Christ and continue his life-giving work in our time and place. Jesus healed the sick and brought comfort to the suffering. In imitation of him, our mission of healing and compassion challenges us to be generous to our neighbours, particularly those who are suffering from a physical illness that can be healed or relieved.

Pope Benedict Speaks on Organ Donation

"Organ donation is a peculiar form of witness to charity. In a period like ours, often marked by various forms of selfishness, it is ever more urgent to understand how the logic of free giving is vital to a correct conception of life. Indeed, a responsibility of love and charity exist that commits one to make of their own life a gift to others, if one truly wishes to fulfill oneself. As the Lord Jesus has taught us, only whoever gives his own life can save it (cf. Lk 9: 24)." Pope Benedict XVI
